Consolidated Reports

On Men, Wages, Etc.

"We are now employing 2,000 men and we are starting next week to employ more," said Reuben H. Fleet, president of Consolidated Aircraft corporation, recently.

In discussing his plans for the expansion of the plant on Lindbergh Field, Fleet said: "We have awarded contracts for the structural steel for a number of new buildings which, when complete, will give us a total of 442,000 square feet of factory space."

In addition to manufacturing activities, these buildings will house engineers, draftsmen, a photographic and a chemical laboratory, in some will be stored paints, oils and an inventory of other raw materials valued at $1,500,000.

Fleet asked San Diego's cooperation in supplying housing facilities for those whom they expect to employ, in order to produce the planes for which they have already received orders.

Consolidated Aircraft has 1,691 men working on an hourly basis. Of these 27 are receiving 38c per hour, 420 are receiving 50c to 59c per hour, and the remaining 857 are receiving 60c or over per hour. At the present time the company is working on a 45-hour week, overtime being paid after forty hours.

The average pay scale of the Consolidated Aircraft plant at San Diego is actually 10% to 15% higher than the average pay scales in other aircraft plants in the east. The comparatively large number of apprentices being trained by the Consolidated tends to lower the entire organization. This situation will be changed and the average wage will increase as these beginners become trained and have their wages raised in proportion.

The Consolidated Aircraft corporation is one of the largest aircraft manufacturers in the world, employing a total of 2,200 men at the present time. Plans call for increasing present employment within a short time. Its present payroll of $3,000,000 per year in San Diego will be considerably increased when this occurs.

Broken Bottles and Other Things

Now that the bathing season is here and the beach, at least for the time being, is much reduced in area, it would seem the thing to do to make it more attractive to the better class of patronage, would be to keep it free from all debris—not meaning driftwood.

It is not the intention to criticize anyone for the amount of liquid refreshment he finds it necessary to imbibe in his pursuit of happiness—but simply to criticize the place he chooses to partake of it and the manner in which he disposes of the bottles.

With all the bathers and the many little children going barefoot, a beach strewn with broken glass is dangerous and unattractive. The thousands of bathers who would find it convenient to bathe here, will no doubt take one look at the beach and go further up the coast.

Would it not be a good plan to assign a tract of land—preferably over in the direction of the causeway, where there are no residents, to be used as a "drinking ground"? The bottles could be tossed in the swamp where they would do no harm and breaking them would afford a great deal of pleasure.

A string of blue lights strung the length of the beach would encourage picnic parties of the right sort and discourage the thirsty gentry. A dozen trash cans would be convenient for picnickers. The question naturally arises as to what class of patronage is wanted at Ocean Beach.

Father Neptune might show his approval of a CLEAN beach by returning the much needed sand.

New House Newport Av.

Another Narragansett

Permits for new homes continue at Ocean Beach with view lots being the favorite in later building activity.

The first of the week P. M. Burrows, local builder, started construction of a frame-stucco residence at 4676 Newport avenue for Charles Clarke, to cost something over $3,000.

At 4580 Narragansett avenue J. L. Billups has started a frame-stucco residence for J. F. Marck to cost close to $4,000.

At 2880 Chatsworth blvd., B. M. Torgerson is building another commodious home to cost $8,000, which will cover frame-stucco residence and garage.

News Prints Novel Book for La Jolla

The News print shop has been kept rather busy during the past two weeks printing 500 copies of a 120 page book for R. Clarkson Colman of Bird Rock, in addition to a little more than the usual amount of commercial job printing.

Mr. Colman is an artist of some note and his book is unique in that it is finished up with California red wood, 3/16ths of an inch thick, for its cover.

The title "The Devil's Playground and The Sea" is descriptive of the contents which are short verses of desert ramblings and poems of the seashore life. The desert life, plant and animal, brings to mind the habitat of Imperial valley, where the author had his experiences. The Seashore birds and fish are descriptively portrayed in word and illustration, there being 42 of the latter, all made by Mrs. Colman in zinc etching and linoleum blocks.

The book is copyrighted and will be placed on sale within the next week or two in the better book stores of this section.

ROLLER SKATING JAMBOREE

FEATURING D. O. K. K. TEAM

Next Tuesday night, May 26th, the D. O. K. K. team (Knights of Pythias) will hold a skating jamboREE at the Ocean Beach roller rink, foot of Newport avenue.

The public is invited to see stunts, novelties, and races. There will be door and floor prizes.

BEATRICE EDMONDS WILL BE HEARD MONDAY EVE

Miss Beatrice Edmonds, considered one of the most accomplished actresses and play analysts in the west, will be presented by San Diego open forum Monday evening, May 25, at the Unitarian church, San Diego. Known for her smooth, vivid play readings and current theatrical reviews, Miss Edmonds makes her final appearance for this season in San Diego. She has appeared only twice before this season due to engagements in the middle west.

Free Band Concerts Available If Wanted

Director Larkin of the WPA band, which now has fifty skilled musicians, was an Ocean Beach visitor Saturday, and a caller at The News office.

Mr. Larkin stated that Ocean Beach might secure the band for one afternoon concert each week if a band stand was provided so that the musicians and audience might have a desirable place to congregate, not necessarily inside, but a convenient location.

It is our suggestion that business people wake up to the fact that band concerts here on a Saturday afternoon would be a most desirable attraction and a band stand erected next to the Fried store on Newport avenue or another block to the east near the Newport hotel.

This matter will be brought before the local chamber of commerce at its meeting next Monday evening and those who are desirous of advancing the project should by all means come to this meeting.

Mary McCormic To Be High School Choir Takes Honors at Hollywood

Mary McCormic, world famous soprano of opera, concert, radio and the movies, will appear in San Diego, Tuesday night, 8:30 p. m., June 16, at the Savoy theatre, singing Violetta in Verdi's Italian Grand Opera, "La Traviata". Miss McCormic will be supported by the full San Diego Civic Grand Opera company, of over one hundred, with superbly trained professional chorus of seventy, symphony orchestra of thirty-five, eleven additional artists, and ballet, under the direction of Buren Schryock, nationally known composer and conductor of grand opera.

Miss McCormic for the past ten years has been a leading prima donna of the Chicago Civic Opera and other opera companies. She has the distinct reputation of being the only American in a period of over thirty years to have a contract with the Paris grand opera. Many American stars have sung there, as guest artists for single performances, but Miss McCormic was given the unique honor of a long term contract. Miss McCormic has appeared before most of the crowned heads of Europe.

There will be one performance only, as she leaves the following morning, Wednesday, June 17, by plane for a mid-western engagement. This one grand opera performance is the greatest opera event in San Diego in over a decade. Seats may now be reserved from the Civic Opera

Myron Green, music instructor at Point Loma high school, as well as his forty-two members of the A Capella Choir, have been receiving hearty congratulations this week for winning high honors in the contest at Hollywood last Saturday.

The News last week contained a complete list of the students taking part in the songfest.

Mussolini Says Conquered Ethiopia Will Be Italian Colony—House Battles Over New Relief Bill—Some Campaign Developments.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD
© Western Newspaper Union.

Benito Mussolini

ETHIOPIA is conquered. Emperor Haile Selassie has fled to Palestine aboard a British cruiser, and the Italian army is in possession of Addis Ababa. The war in East Africa is ended. But this climax may be only the beginning of a still greater story, for Benito Mussolini tells the world that all of Ethiopia now belongs to Italy, to be treated as a colony and defended by force of arms if necessary. He toned this down just a little by giving the French ambassador assurance that he would not infringe on French and British interests in East Africa, meaning the French railway from Djibouti to Addis Ababa and the British interests in the Lake Tana headwaters of the Blue Nile. If Duce intimated that if France and Britain would support his program he would give them full trade privileges in Ethiopia and exclude all other nations.

The League of Nations council was about to meet in Geneva and it was believed the anti-Fascist sentiment among the French left parties that have just come into power would influence the French attitude there. The British, too, were said not to be reconciled to Mussolini's victory and it was understood Foreign Secretary Eden would insist on continuance of the penalties against Italy, provided the other leading nations agreed. Indeed, the league could not well raise the sanctions if the European powers take the stand assumed last fall by the United States and refuse to recognize acquisition of territory by force. All of them realize such recognition in this case would create a dangerous precedent.

Mussolini's success in East Africa is a humiliating defeat for Great Britain, and a sad blow to the prestige of the League of Nations. Anthony Eden told the house of commons that Britain's failure to take military sanctions against Italy was "due to the horror of war and not to fear of the ultimate outcome." The Laborites enraged Eden by their attacks and he refused to disclose what the government's policy at Geneva might be, demanding a free hand to deal with circumstances as they might arise.

One result in Washington of the taking of Addis Ababa was severe criticism of the State department for having so wretchedly protected a legation there. Minister Engert had only a few weapons and the building was open to attack. Representative Edith Nourse Rogers of Massachusetts introduced a resolution calling on Secretary Hull for information as to measures taken for protection of the legation staff.

EMPEROR HAILE SELASSIE of Ethiopia gave up the hopeless fight against the Italian invaders and fled from Addis Ababa with his family. Mussolini's victorious troops soon after marched into the capital, the first to enter being a picked regiment representing all units of the Italian army, the Askari, infantry, artillery, air force, engineers, grenadiers, bersaglieri, Alpini, cavalry, marines and Fascist militiamen.

Their coming was welcomed by the foreigners who remained in the city, for as soon as the news left, the natives began to pillage, plunder and burn. The business center of the town was speedily wrecked and the government buildings were stormed and ravaged, these including the treasury from which the state's store of gold was stolen, and the armory. The streets were strewn with corpses and the Ethiopians, crazed by liquor, rushed about shooting at random and gathering up their loot to carry it to the hills.

WITH the introduction of the unemployment relief bill calling for appropriation of a billion and a half dollars, a lively fight started in the house. The Republicans and a fair sized bloc of Democrats attacked the measure chiefly because the entire big sum was to be turned over to Harry Hopkins, WPA administrator, in accordance with the wishes of President Roosevelt. The Chief Executive had refused to countenance the earmarking of $400,000,000 for projects of the heavy type sponsored by Secretary Ickes, head of the Public Works administration, and so the adherents of the latter gentleman were prepared to revive the old Ickes-Hopkins feud. Majority Leader Bankhead was confident the bill would be passed as reported by the appropriations committee.

At a Republican caucus Representative John Taber of New York, ranking minority member of the appropriations committee, explained the measure to his colleagues as that they could conduct an "intelligent opposition" to it. He promised a real fight on the bill. When Hopkins was before the committee in secret session, he was ordered to give detailed information concerning his expenditure of the four billions deeded him by congress last year. Hopkins reluctantly admitted that nearly two billions of the original huge fund was still unexpended.

Added to the extra one and a half billions requested by President Roosevelt, Hopkins would have three and a half billions to spend in an election year, it was pointed out.

CALIFORNIA'S Presidential Republican preference primary, eagerly awaited by the whole country, resulted in the defeat of the Landon state of delegates that was put forward by William R. Hearst and Governor Merriam, with Landon's tacit consent.

The winning delegates, backed by Herbert Hoover and nominally pledged to Earl Warren though uncommitted, carried the state by a majority of about 90,000. Mr. Warren announced at once that he released them from their pledge, to vote as they see fit in the convention.

This looked like a blow to Governor Landon, and to a certain extent it was; but his managers claim at least 18 of the delegates will go over to the Landon on an early ballot. Moreover, many friends of Landon deprecated the fact that Hearst was supporting him, believing it would do him more harm than good; and they were glad to see him freed in part from what they consider an incubus.

Democrats voted almost solidly for Mr. Roosevelt. Upton ("Epic") Sinclair's ticket received something over 100,000 votes, and that of John S. McGroarty, Townsend plan supporter, about half as many.

In South Dakota a slate of uncommitted delegates favoring Landon won over a ticket pledged to Senator Borah, though the margin was slender.

HENRY P. FLETCHER, Republican national chairman, has taken a leaf from the plans of the Democrats and announces that the men nominated at the Cleveland convention to head the Republican ticket will be notified of the fact at a grand outdoor ceremony in the Municipal stadium, near the convention hall, immediately after the adjournment. This plan, of course, is conditional upon the wishes of the nominees. The Democrats had previously announced plans to notify President Roosevelt and Vice President Garner of their re-nomination with a ceremony at Franklin field, Philadelphia.

SENATOR ARTHUR H. VANDENBERG of Michigan has asked Gov. Frank D. Fitzgerald of that state to present his name to the Republican convention in Cleveland for the Presidential nomination, but the senator insists this does not make him an active candidate.

"The Michigan state convention generously instructed the Michigan delegation in Cleveland to present my name," the senator said. "But the delegation is unpledged—at my request. It is free to vote as it pleases. I have not sought a delegation here or elsewhere and I shall not do so. I have not sought the nomination and shall not do so. My situation is not changed in the slightest."

Friends of Senator Borah in Utah tried unsuccessfully for a Borah pledged delegation from that state. The Republican state convention in Ogden voted to send an uncommitted group to Cleveland, following the recommendation of the resolutions committee.

Col. Henry Breckenridge, who offered himself to the Democrats as a Presidential nominee aspirant merely so that disaffected members of the party might have some place to go, received about one-seventh of the votes in the Maryland preference primary. The rest, of course, went to Mr. Roosevelt. Breckenridge made no campaign.

THE national resources committee, which is headed by Secretary of the Interior Ickes, has submitted for the approval of President Roosevelt a plan for the creation of a Pacific Northwest Power agency that would outlive the Tennessee Valley authority and would produce almost as much electrical energy as the entire nation could utilize.

Two of the New Deal's power ventures, the Bonneville and Grand Coulee dams, would be embraced by the PNPA. The ultimate cost of Bonneville will be 75 million dollars and that of Grand Coulee 204 millions. The additional dam and power plant projects proposed by the committee would entail expenditures of approximately 526 millions, making a total of 805 millions.

DANIEL O. HASTINGS, senator from Delaware, chairman of the Republican senatorial campaign committee and outspoken opponent of the New Deal, will not seek re-election when his present term expires. He so announced in a letter to the party leaders of his state, giving as his reason the necessity to devote himself to his law practice.

This may have influenced his decision, but it is more than suspected that the real reason was the fact that the du Pont family, all-powerful in Delaware Republican politics, had decided that the senatorial seat should go to Gov. C. Douglas Buck, who is related to the du Ponts by marriage. Senator Hastings has always been ready and eloquent in defense of the du Ponts against attacks by the New Dealers.

Sen. Hastings

MINERS and operators in the Pennsylvania anthracite fields have agreed upon the continuance of existing wage levels for two years, though final details of the contract are still being worked out.

Other points decided upon, it was said, are a complete checkoff of union dues, a form of equalization of working time in idle collieries and a seven-hour day during the second year of the contract. The miners now work an eight-hour, six-day week and had been seeking a six-hour, five-day week.

In his press conference the President announced that administration leaders had reached substantial agreement on the principles and objectives of a housing program.

He declared himself in favor of the Wagner bill, which is designed to encourage better housing through slum clearance. He indicated the bill could be modified to include provision for low cost housing to bring better homes within the reach of low income classes.

SOME one with a peculiar idea of humor played a mean joke on the authorities in Washington. The red flag of Communist Russia with the hammer and sickle was discovered at dawn flying from the flag staff atop the marble building of the Supreme court of the United States. It was so skillfully fastened up there that policemen and firemen worked an hour and a half before the revolutionary emblem could be removed.

SECRETARY OF STATE HULL has successfully negotiated another reciprocal trade agreement. It is with France and was signed at the State department by Mr. Hull and Andre de Laboulaye, the French ambassador. It will become effective on June 15, and the details of the pact were not immediately made public.

It is believed the terms include duty concessions by the United States on French wines, cigarette papers, and luxuries such as laces and cosmetics, and by France on American exports of agricultural and industrial products. The agreement is also understood to contain increases in French quotas on American exports of fruits, and possibly other products.

An announcement by the State department said: "The agreement with France is the first comprehensive arrangement for regulating commercial relations with that country in many years. It will provide improved opportunities for the expansion of trade in products of special interest to each country, and will enable the commercial interests concerned to develop these opportunities without fear of the sudden and unforeseen changes to which they are exposed in the absence of such an agreement."

"In addition to duty concessions and quota increases by France and duty concessions by the United States on carefully selected lists of products, the agreement provides in general for substantial most-favored-nation treatment by each country of the commerce of the other."

FINAL elections in France put complete control of the chamber of deputies in the hands of the revolutionary "Popular Front," a coalition of Communists, Socialists, Radical Socialists and minor left wing groups. The new chamber does not meet until June, and the confusion is so great that there are fears of chaos and financial panic in the interim. Many believe the Popular Front will be unable to form a stable government to succeed that of Premier Sarraut. The lead must be taken by the Socialists, for they now form the largest group in the chamber with 146 seats.

SINCE international naval disarmament efforts have failed, those who advocate adequate national defense rejoice in the passage by the house of the bill appropriating approximately $531,000,000 to build our navy up to treaty strength. Representative Marcantonio of New York and a few others put up loud opposition, but a record vote was not necessary. The objectors dwelt especially on a clause authorizing the laying of keels for two 35,000 ton battleships after January 1, 1937, should any foreign signatory to the London naval treaty start a battleship replacement program. Two days later they might have read dispatches from London saying rumors had reached there that Japan was considering laying down a 55,000 ton battleship armed with 21-inch guns.

The Gopher State

A Minnesota Idea of a Bridge Approach.

Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service.

MINNESOTA is unique among the states in its drainage system. It sends waters to three widely separated seas: through the Mississippi to the Gulf of Mexico, through the Red river and its tributaries to Hudson bay; and through the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence to the Atlantic. And no other state has as many lakes within its borders. There are more than 10,000 of them.

The map of the state reveals that Minnesota is cut into two vast triangles by a diagonal line running from the northeast corner (where the Red river flows out northward) down to the southeast corner (where the Mississippi flows out southward). Imagine the upper triangle painted green, and the lower one painted yellow, and presto! you have the state roughly divided into its natural forest and prairie parts.

The green triangle, before the lumbermen came, was in general a huge pine forest, and begins to be so again. The yellow triangle, before the farmer came, was a grassland "like the billows of a great sea, majestic and limitless"; now it is fields, with windbreaks of planted trees to shelter the red barns and white farmhouses.

The diagonal line that divides these triangles has its significance, too. It marks the chief trade route through the state and also a wandering barrier of deciduous woods, now carved up to make way for farms and cities, which everywhere separates the pine-lands from the prairies.

Broader toward the South where it attaches to the deciduous woods of Wisconsin, it dwindles to a thin scattering of stunted trees toward the north—the final outpost of the hardwood forest of eastern America.

As the ends of this diagonal mark the low exits of the state's two principal rivers, the outer corners of the two triangles mark the state's highest ground. At the outer corner of the yellow triangle the plateau known as Coteau des Prairies just crosses, dividing the Missouri from the Mississippi basins with its immense gradual swell. In the outer corner of the green triangle, the "Arrowhead Country" above Lake Superior, are the Sawtooth mountains and the Misquah hills, rocky, choked in forest.

Climate Is "Continental."

The climate of this pair of triangles is a grief to those who resent surprises. It is "continental" in the most emphatic sense. Temperatures range in a mild year through 120 degrees; in a year with a real wallop to it, as high as 165. In consequence, the native of outdoor habits must maintain a wardrobe that includes everything from the shortest of swimming shorts to the longest of long woolsens.

Lake Superior, it is true, tends to temper the winds of the region around it, but not to the shorn lamb; no, no. Thanks to the proximity of that deep reservoir of pure icewater, a grouchy visitor has been heard to complain that the coldest winter he ever spent was one summer in Duluth!

Nor are the blessings of ample rainfall to be taken for granted. Of late years the yellow triangle, commonly less rainy and much less snowy than the green, has involuntarily tried the experiment of getting along with next to no moisture at all. In fact, Minnesota has weather to please all tastes, in strong doses which, as a rule, stimulate rather than kill.

The Nineteenth century marked an immense change in Minnesota. The white man arrived in numbers to establish himself in a country where it was easier to make a living than in the one he had come from. This was not a very noble purpose in one way, and it led to many injustices to the existing inhabitants, both men and animals. Yet the annals of the pioneer invasion reveal, too, a deep longing in those people for the good life; for they were certainly ready to undergo discomforts that were killing in their high hopes for the future in a new land.

There was much to be done, for the white man always insists on altering nature to suit his own views. But energy was the characteristic of the age. With rifle, ax, and plow, and later with money, miracles were wrought.

Its Animal Population.

For one thing, the status of the native animals was drastically changed. In the yellow triangle, marvelously fertile for wheat, the buffalo, antelope, and coyote were agricultural impossibilities. The first two were exterminated; the remnants of the coyote tribe retreated to the green triangle, altered their habits to suit a woods environment, and became "brush wolves."

The deer, whose natural home was the diagonal woods barrier, also retreated into the green triangle. The lumberjack, by hewing down the greater part of the pine there, did the deer a favor, for the birch and aspen that supplanted it made a home to their liking; in fact, in it they thrive and multiply.

Though one would not slight the luscious meadows, vast potato fields, and other agriculture of the green triangle, it has in general been rebellious in the farmer's hands and so remains essentially a forest and game refuge to this day.

True, the trapper and sportsman have drastically diminished the numbers of its natural citizens, such as the timber wolf, otter, fisher, and lynx.

But the beaver still builds his dams there; the black bear may be spied, fishing with his paws when the fish run in the streams; the porcupine in large numbers yet gnaws the jack pine bark, and travels a path which, winding through the snowy groves, looks as neat and regular as if some one had rolled a heavy truck tire there. And the snowshoe rabbit, whose favorite diet is the pine seedlings set out by government foresters, travels the winter drifts on his padded legs.

The American elk, or wapiti, is extinct in Minnesota. The caribou is almost so; a herd is sometimes seen in the remote fastnesses of the great swamp of Beltrami county, north of Red lake. But the moose, in the Arrowhead country, survives in fair numbers.

Canoe travelers often see the noble monster at lunch in some lake, his body submerged for protection against the flies, his lips curling around the water lily shoots that make a dainty hot-weather salad for this giant among American mammals. But he is wisely a shy animal.

Lots of Good Fishing.

Fish and fowl likewise have had to adjust themselves to their new neighbor, the white man.

A game-fish paradise has a way of retreating when the sportsman finds it. Thus the greedy now must go to the border lakes to catch a boatload of pike in an afternoon. But this does not mean that there is not famous fishing elsewhere.

The muskellunge of such lakes as Mantrap, or the fighting small-mouth bass of White Earth, and the many other fish of a thousand waters, make tall fish stories annually, which, in spite of the low repute of fish stories, are essentially true. Certainly they reflect justly the fun that ancient sport provides.

And the Minnesota citizen almost anywhere may go out after supper and hook a black bass or a mess of crappies, or, in not more than a day's drive, reach lakes in whose 200-foot depths the noble lake trout can be caught on lines of spun Monel wire.

Of the original game-bird inhabitants of the state only the grouse can now be called abundant, and its abundance wanes and waxes in cycles. This ruffed grouse is the characteristic bird of the green triangle. Tame, richly speckled and ruffed, it provides a voice for the wilderness in the accelerating thud of its wings drumming on some hollow log, a mysterious music that the forest muffles as if to hold secret.

Thanks to ill-considered drainage and the advance of the farmer, the wild duck's breeding grounds in Minnesota are largely lost to it; the black V's of its spring flight go for the most part beyond the border into Canada. Nor has the prairie chicken been very clever in adapting itself to life on the farm and as a target.

But the introduction of a partly parasitic bird, the ring-necked pheasant, which does not scruple to help itself to the farmer's corn to pay for serving as his autumn target, has proved a huge success. That fantastically colored bird, looking fitter to stand among the exotic blossoms painted on some Chinese screen than among the prairie sunflowers, nevertheless has made itself completely at home in the yellow triangle. Its voice has become that area's voice, the harsh double cry "like the clashing of two sabres."

Another bird, too tough and clever often to be shot, gives a voice to Minnesota's lakes. This is the loon, whose melancholy cry on some black lake shaggy with overhanging pines, when the moon sets and the winds are down, speaks in the accents of truly great poetry. The man who has heard it never forgets that wilderness music to his dying day.

As for small birds, such as the woodsman's friend, the chickadee, or that wine-red winter visitor whistling its clear song, the pine grosbeak from the North, or the horned lark that brings the earliest music of spring to frozen February fields—they are far too numerous even to be mentioned here.

Self-Made Men

No man is wholly "self-made." Whatever he may have achieved there have been many who have helped him in the process.

Memorial Day

Cy Warman in the Indianapolis News.

Gather the garlands rare today.
Snow-white roses and roses red;
Gather the fairest flowers of May,
Heap them up on the graves of clay.
Gladden the graves of the noble dead.

Pile them high as the soldiers were
Piled on the field where they fought and fell:
They will rejoice in their new place there
Today, as they walk where the fragrant air
Is sweet with the scent of asphodel.

Many a time, I've heard it said.
They fell so thick where the battles were.
Their hot blood rippled, and, running red,
Ran out like a rill from the drifted dead
Staining the heath and the daisies there.

This day the friends of the soldiers keep,
And they will keep it through all the years.
To the silent city where soldiers sleep
Will come with flowers, to watch and weep
And water the garlands with their tears.

Day of Memories

FEW now survive from among those for whom Memorial day was particularly established. The ranks of the Grand Army of the Republic are shattered. Younger men, veterans of later wars, take the place of those who wore the blue or gray from Bull Run to Appomattox, as symbols of the nation's strength in arms.

Forms of observance change with the times, but the underlying spirit of thankful remembrance remains ever fresh and unalterable. To those who first thought of setting apart a day each year for patriotic remembrance such an event as that now staged annually at Indianapolis or the baseball double header or the highways crowded with pleasure-seeking motorists would have been as inconceivable as the radio to an aborigine. But one likes to believe that these manifestations of American life do not in the least modify the nation's sense of devotion to the memory of those who have borne her arms to victory.

There is needed in these diverting and troublous days some special occasion when minds shall turn to the men who have dared to bare their breasts to an enemy in war, who have seen in their country's flag something more than a piece of bunting and been convinced that a nation worth founding was worth defending even at the expense of life and treasure. One hears much in these days of pacifism, of oaths solemnly taken never to bear arms in war, of the supposed mockery of popular government, the rise of dictatorships and the smashing of treaty pledges. One hears too little of the innumerable thousands of stanch American hearts which still believe in national honor, the Constitution and the causes for which men in the past have been proud to die.

A people ready to observe Memorial day is not one to give way to despair. Today we honor the patriot dead. We honor, no less, the living who are inspired by the example of those whose graves they decorate.

Where Our Troops Stopped

A RUGGED monument of war implements, mortar and stone, marking the extreme point of advance of the American army during the World war, still stands on a hill east of Buzancy, France, years after it was constructed by American soldiers on Armistice day, 1918.

The monument not only marks the farthest advance of the American army on the western front during the World war—it also marks the ground where at least four major wars of history have ended.

The monument is composed of German war weapons, including helmets, rifles, bayonets, swords, barbed-wire, gray pieces of uniform, and two small field guns. Encrusted in mortar, the enemy's arms of war were permanently "bound," symbolizing American victory. This spot has always known strife. In 1870 Moltke's Prussians crossed the Meuse near here and humbled the French under Napoleon III on this ground. That battle ended the Franco-Prussian war.

Battle cries echoed in the hills of Buzancy little more than a half century earlier when Napoleon was terrorizing central Europe. Only a short distance away is Waterloo.

Richelieu, dictator of France in 1641, was crushed on this noted battlefield by a combination of French and Spanish forces, and the Swedes journeyed to this battle ground at an earlier date, ending a bloody conflict with the Franks.

BILLY MINK FINDS A TRAP

FOR two days Billy Mink saw nothing more of the man who had made him suspicious. But this didn't make Billy feel any easier in his mind. He had a feeling that that man had visited the Laughing Brook for no good purpose. He had a feeling that that visit had something to do with himself. So Billy became more watchful than ever and traveled up and down the length of the Laughing Brook more often than ever, trying with eyes and nose to find out just what that man had been about.

The third day after that first visit the man came again. Billy saw him almost as soon as he reached the Laughing Brook, but not quite. The man had come down the Laughing Brook a little way before Billy discovered him. Just as he had done the first time, Billy followed the man down the Laughing Brook. Just as before, the man seemed to be looking for something. Billy watched him until finally he tramped off through the Green Forest. Then Billy turned and hurried back to the place where he had first seen the man that morning.

He Crossed Back and Forth From One Bank to Another.

"He didn't do anything while I watched him but poke about and seem to be looking for something," muttered Billy. "I wonder if he did anything else before I discovered him. I think I'll look to see that everything is all right up the Laughing Brook."

So Billy went up the Laughing Brook above the place where he had first seen the man that morning. He crossed back and forth from one bank to the other and he examined every stick and log and hole as he went along. Being suspicious, he took the greatest care not to step anywhere until he had first looked to make sure that it was safe.

His nose told him just where the man had been, but for some time he found nothing suspicious. Everything was just as it should be. Nevertheless, Billy was filled with uneasiness. He couldn't get rid of a feeling that something was wrong somewhere. Presently he came to a hole in the bank, a hole with which he was very familiar. From that hole came the most appetizing smell. Now Billy was hungry. He had spent so much time following that strange man that he had had no chance to eat for some time.

The smell from that hole was of fish. That fish was in the back of the hole. There was no doubt about that. All Billy had to do was to go in and get it, and that is what he was tempted to do. Then in a flash a thought came to him. There never had been a fish in there before, so why should there be now? With the greatest care Billy began to examine everything around that hole. In the water just at the entrance to that hole were some dead leaves held down by a little bit of mud. Billy didn't remember ever seeing those leaves before. Very cautiously he reached out and lifted them. Underneath was a trap.

THE BANANA MYSTERY

THE magician says that the price of a banana is 5 cents. He lays a nickel on the table and peels a banana in the customary way. Then he puts down 5 pennies and peels a second banana.

Since five coins were paid for this one, the banana is found to be divided into five separate sections. Yet it appeared to be in its natural state before the peeling.

The banana is prepared. Push a needle under the skin and out at the side. Thread it back through the same hole and continue around the banana until the needle finally comes out at the starting point. Pull out the thread. This slices the banana.

Perform the operation at four points to divide the banana into five pieces. The banana will pass inspection prior to the peeling.

REPENTANT SUNS

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

DAY, and the bright intensity
Of sunlight on a summer sea,
That lays a path of burning brass
Across a waste of molten glass.
The day so often is too bright,
Too full of passionate delight,
Of blazing brass we think is gold,
We think that happiness will hold.

But not until the day is done
One knows the glory of the sun,
And only at the edge of eve
His tender glances shall receive.
He turns as some one who departs
Turns always to neglected hearts,
And gives the world a look at last
Of kindness, when his day is past.

For suns, and men, and all things great,
With gentleness will always wait.
Yes, not until the day is done,
Another's battle lost or won,
We turn to give him words of praise—
As suns repentant end their days
With purple seas and rosy skies
Almost too late for weary eyes.

Youth Tackles The World

That time of year is almost here, now, when great legions of youth will march forth from high schools and colleges, diplomas in hand, with high hopes and an indomitable determination to conquer the world.

Naturally they will be somewhat disillusioned, and disciplined in the school of hard knocks. That merely tempers the steel. But how much better their opportunities are this year! More jobs are open to them than at any other time since 1931.

Problems galore of course, as youth always has. Many of them will go into large business enterprises, there to start at the bottom. They will spend long hours in this "school", learning salesmanship, marketing, efficient business methods and procedure. Their incomes, while not huge at first will be adequate, steady and certain.

Others, having a little saved, will choose a less certain path, setting up enterprises of their own. They should know beforehand that competition causes only 2 to 3 percent of business failures, while inexperience and lack of capital cause 25 to 30 percent.

So competition from large organizations will not block their paths, if they have the experience and wisdom to be efficient, and enough money to support even a very small business properly.

These problems of livelihood first. But what a multitude more there are! Problems of marriage, of a home, of future relationships—all to be tackled with youth's bustling energy and enthusiasm. What man is not tempted to want to turn back time and relive these years of his life?

Our Prison Problem

Few will argue the point that California's prison system has been permitted to lapse to the point of becoming a disgrace to the State. It is true there have been extenuating circumstances, what with depression, lack of money, and more numerous convictions for crime.

But excuses cannot alter the fact that we're coming smack up against a crisis in prison affairs that must be met with intelligent action. That is clearly apparent in the picture drawn by ex-Warden James B. Holohan of impossible conditions at San Quentin.

More than six thousand men packed like cattle in a place meant for 3000! Thirty-nine men living on floor space the size of a small bungalow! And the whole huge prison a keg of restless dynamite.

Holohan, retired now after eight and a half years as warden, has presented a five-point plan for an adequate California system. His basic theory is that rehabilitation should be stressed, that the rotten apples should be separated from those only bruised, who might be regenerated.

First he would have prison farms for youthful first offenders, where they could work in the open and learn cleaner ways. He would limit San Quentin to 2500 men. He would reserve Folsom only for the most incorrigible, dangerous criminals. He would have a separate institution for the criminally insane and feeble-minded. He would triple the number of men being rehabilitated in road camps.

Many will, of course, disagree in some way with the program. But no one will deny we must have a program, and soon. Every responsible citizen in the State should be putting in some serious thought on this prison problem.

Television is on the way and may be due to arrive in the home within a short space of time. In fact officials of the National Broadcasting Co., are said to have predicted that television sets will be placed in the homes within a year. In such an event it can not be long now before people will be invited to scrap their present radio sets and install those for television. Whether they will do so at the additional cost in times like these, may be a question of economic importance. However, many may not be worried over the matter, and will make haste to be up with the times irrespective of any financial bearers. At any rate, the greatest competitor of the theatre will be television, and the fight is already in sight. Construction of a coaxial cable to link New York and Philadelphia for experiments in telephone and television transmission has already been started. Many months will be required to complete the work, but the rate of progress will depend much on the difficulties encountered and television experiments may not even begin before next fall.

It takes a chief mail clerk and 25 assistants to read President Roosevelt's mail of approximately 7,000 letters daily. The president gets the record presidential mail in history; such subjects as petitions, criticisms, praises and compliments flow in by the bag full, and many times a day. Uncle Sam has a good postal business and the president is one of his best patrons. The postman evidently does not deliver the mail on foot; rather an auto truck is most convenient. President Roosevelt may sing the postman's ode which runs something like this:

The postman is a cheerful chap;
He whistles briefly and departs.
Sometimes he leaves a bit of joy;
Again a note that breaks our hearts.

The return of the liquor traffic is said to be America's greatest folly. We must admit that there are scores of complaints coming directly from the indulgence. Divorces, traffic deaths and accidents, demoralizing influences on the younger generation and many other threatening agencies. As a collective list the evil is casting an alarming warning upon the people. The "dry leaders" say that there must be action to stop this enemy of society. They cry for sane legislation, which is the only power to stop it. Talk is so cheap, that unless it is earnest, sane and convincing, talk will never do it.

Native of Mississippi Says Our Climate Ideal

Our southern friend, B.B. Wright, tells how much he thinks of the privilege of living in California, especially here at Ocean Beach, in the year-round moderate climate which he was not accustomed to before getting so far west, and which is not equalled in more than one or two places in the whole world. Here are B.B.'s ideas of this section.

My first impressions of Point Loma and Ocean Beach:

I came to California from Oklahoma, stopped over at Holtville, Imperial valley, for the winter, and drank ditch water, and was satisfied there for about seven years, thinking all that time I was in California.

One day a friend picked me up in a new car and landed me on Point Loma and as I looked over beautiful Sunset Cliffs—west, I saw a view that caused a pause I can't express. Looking seven thousand miles across the great Pacific ocean and breathing air that has sixteen medicinal properties, I was just awed, to think of a Creator that could make such a heaven for men and women on earth, so I went back to make arrangements to come and live at Ocean Beach. My friends said, "Wright, you can't make a living there." I answered, that I saw one hundred and twenty-seven thousand doing it. So I came, and here I am, THANKS.

Now down to bed rock, if people in the east had any idea what wonderful climate and people we have here, Los Angeles sure would have to call out the National guard to stop them, for people everywhere are craving a restful, warm climate, and Ocean Beach and its people are so peace-loving and kind to live among, and when we get our fishing pier, (which we will) what better place would anyone want.

B. B. Wright.

BEAUTIFUL PAINTING PRESENTED GOODWILL CHAPEL BY LOCAL ARTIST

On Tuesday morning, May 19, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Smith were surprised to see the Goodwill chapel gayly decorated with flowers and a picture, Mr. Smith had painted and presented to superintendent Insko and staff of Goodwill Industries for their chapel, being in its appointed place. After the opening devotional exercises, Rev. Insko spoke a few words in appreciation of the first picture, given by the artist, which hangs in the office. He said many had wanted to buy it, but of course it was not for sale. Rev. Insko then asked the Rev. Williams to accept this second picture on behalf of the Goodwill staff. The title of this painting is "At Eventide There Shall Be Light," and depicts a dark evening with the moon shining through rolling clouds and trees, on to a water scene, with a quiet pastoral scene in the background.

Rev. Williams caught the artists vision saying, "The picture is true of our lives, which often are darkened by trials and troubles, but to the Christian the light of Jesus Christ shines through, giving us light in our troublous times, and pointing us ever onward to the Light of Life."

After accepting the picture in behalf of the superintendent and staff, Mr. Williams presented the artist with a bouquet of flowers, which Mr. Smith promptly presented to his wife. Mr. Smith responded in his usual jocular manner, also expressing the hope that the audience would receive as much pleasure in viewing his work as he had received in painting it. Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Smith of Ocean Beach, have conducted services in Goodwill chapel every other Tuesday for over two years.

NEW TRAINS ADDED TO SOUTHERN PACIFIC SERVICE

Opening of the annual summer tourist season May 15, begins an increase in tourist travel to Southern California that is expected to set new records for recent years, it was stated today by A. D. Hagaman, local representative Southern Pacific Lines.

Reports just received from a national survey of travel prospects give ample evidence that many thousands of people are planning vacation trips to California, he stated.

Low round-trip rates, both east and westbound, will again be a prime attraction to travelers this summer, but vast improvements in train equipment and schedules are expected to be of even greater appeal. All Southern Pacific transcontinental trains, together with many on shorter runs, now are completely air-conditioned.

In preparation for the heavy travel, three new trains daily to and from Southern California have been added to Southern Pacific service recently. One, the Argonaut, runs to New Orleans through Texas and two others have been added to service to and from the north.

These trains, with the famous Golden State Limited to Chicago, were declared to be in keeping with general improvements in business conditions during recent months.

HISTORY ESTABLISHMENT OF CALIFORNIA MISSIONS

California's famous old Missions, with their historical and romantic backgrounds, annually attract thousands of visitors. Twenty-one Franciscan Missions were founded by the Rev. Fray Junipero Serra and his colleagues extending from San Diego to what is now Sonoma county. Some are in ruins, others have been restored, all are preserved as priceless landmarks. Because of recent widespread revival of interest in the old Missions, Earl Lee Kelly, Director of the Dept. of Public Works, at the request of Governor Frank F. Merriam, has prepared for the benefit of visitors, brief histories of them directions on how to reach them over California highways. For the purposes of this series, the Missions will be taken up in the order of their location from south to north, rather than in the sequence of their founding.

MISSION SAN LUIS REY de FRANCIA (A Continuation)

JUNE 13, 1798.

Many of the converts fled to the mountains and reverted to their savage ways. Others refused to work and became shiftless and troublesome. Those who remained with the mission became little more than slaves.

"Such at this time," says Father Engelhardt, "was the situation at San Luis Rey, which down to the arrival of Echeandia, eight years before, sheltered a happy and contented family of more than 2,000 Indian converts."

Stirred to action by the misery of the Indians, Governor Alvarado on January 19, 1839, appointed William Hartnell, an Englishman, inspector of missions, and directed him to prepare a report on conditions. Hartnell, credited with being sincere and honest, tried to help Mission San Luis Rey. On July 5, 1840, he removed Pio Pico as administrator and appointed Jose Antonio Estudillo of San Diego to succeed him. Pico, however, continued intrigues to gain possession of the Indian ranchos.

In March, 1843, Governor Manuel Micheltorena reinstated the Franciscans and on April 22 Mission San Luis Rey was turned over to Fr. Jose Maria Zalvidea. Peace came again to San Luis Rey, but lasted only two short years. Pico conspired successfully against Micheltorena, drove him from the country and himself became governor. He was determined to wipe out the missions. He brought San Luis Rey to the verge of bankruptcy and on May 18, 1846, illegally sold the mission to Jose A. Cot and Jose A. Pico, including the Rancho Pala, for $2,000 in silver and $437.50 in grain. After American occupation this sale was nullified by the United States Supreme Court.

Under American army control, San Luis Rey received kindly treatment. Pico fled to Mexico in August, 1846. Successive American Indian

THE DESERT

The DEVIL'S PLAYGROUND

The Devil himself and the Violet Ray,
Are on the desert their pranks to play.

They cook the sage and wild mesquite,
They hide in the sand that burns your feet.
From early May 'till October morn,
They drive out the cool that winter's borne.
They go over north and dig a big well
And suck in the winds of a southern Hell;
They fill in the hole, then pitch it out
With a rush and a roar like a water spout.
Back and forth the wind will tear
In maddened glee and blinding glare,
Blotting all the world from sight,—
'Tis the Devil's madness—His appetite.

Rattlesnakes rattle, scorpions hide.
While the Devil takes his desert ride.
He changes the dunes and covers the earth
With a sandy blanket of Hellish mirth.—
But when he's thru, in mad contrast,
You find the return of a marvelous past;—
The same old hills, the same wild flowers,
With desert moon and quiet hours,—
Date-palm blooms, birds a-singing;
Butterflies in the stillness winging.
Now take it from me, and don't forget;
If you haven't been on the desert yet—
It's a wonderful place to come and roam,—
If the Devil's gone back to his devilish home.

Warren-Walker School

Summer vacations are being discussed since there are only three more weeks in this semester. Several children are coming back to Warren-Walker school for either the long term of summer school or for the short term. Other children plan to travel. Peter Pinney expects to leave San Diego late in the summer for a trip around the world. Robert McIntyre plans to accompany his mother to Yosemite park. Stewart Fox is very excited about a trip to Catalina Island, and then on to the Hawaiian Islands for an extended visit. Billy Russell also expects to go to Catalina. Miss Ruth Price, teacher of the intermediate group, is looking forward to an interesting summer. She is co-director of a girls' camp at Tamarack lodge, Pine Knot, California.

Last Friday afternoon the primary group had a birthday party for Jackie Graff. He was five years old. There was a lovely, big, white cake with his name, and five candles on it.

THE POINT LOMA ASSEMBLY CHOOSES BOARD OF DIRECTORS

One of the most delightful events of the club year was a picnic recently given by the Point Loma assembly at "King's Garden." This is one of the many beauty spots in Presidio park surrounding the Junipero Serra museum.

Mrs. Stanley Turner, Mrs. Grace Culbertson and Mrs. Ray Penfold had charge of arrangements. Special features were a treasure hunt, a "scrambled word" game and a poetry writing contest. Mrs. W. E. Lyon found the "pot of gold" in the treasure hunt and was also awarded first place in the poetry contest. Other prizes went to Miss Byrd Taft, Mrs. W. R. Spicall, Mrs. John Davidson, Mrs. E. E. Linstrom, Mrs. Shoemaker and Mrs. J. B. McFaden.

At a business meeting following luncheon, members of the board of directors for the coming year were elected. Those chosen to serve were Miss Eolia Davidson, Mrs. E. F. Linstrom, Mrs. W. E. Lyon, Mrs. Minnie McMillen, Miss Georgia Osgood, Mrs. Louise Pfahler, Miss Byrd Taft, Mrs. E. O. Tauer, Mrs. Stanley Turner and Miss Charlotte White.

After the business meeting, John Davidson, curator of Junipero Serra museum, conducted members of the assembly on a tour of the grounds, pointing out the site of old Fort Stockton and telling many interesting facts about the trees and plants which go toward making Presidio hill a beautiful, as well as a priceless historical gift to the city.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Soul and Body" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon on Sunday in all branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. The Golden Text is from I Peter: "Dearly beloved, I beseech you as strangers and pilgrims, abstain from fleshly lusts, which war against the soul."

Among the Bible selections in the Lesson-Sermon are these words from Paul's letter to the Galatians: "This I say, then, Walk in the Spirit, and ye shall not fulfil the lust of the flesh. For the flesh lusteth against the Spirit, and the Spirit against the flesh: and these are contrary the one to the other: so that ye cannot do the things that ye would. But if ye be led of the Spirit, ye are not under the law. If we live in the Spirit, let us also walk in the Spirit."

The famous "Liberty Bell Rug," on which President Roosevelt stood and wished that he might some day be President of the United States when he was still governor of New York, is on display at the Exposition in San Diego.

TIME For Play TODAY

ALL work and no play makes Jack a dull boy. But it makes Jill practically impossible. Women who have gone so berserk about work that they've forgotten how to have a good time are usually also poor workers. "But with so much to do staring me in the face—" That was a good line a decade ago, but it's no alibi today. Housework has become simpler, for canning has taken the drudgery out of cooking and if we can't find time to play something—bridge, golf, ping-pong, tiddle-de-winks—then it's just too bad.

Canned Mixed Vegetables

One of the newer and very welcome aids to busy housewives is the coming on the market of canned mixed vegetables. Some of these called vegetables for salads, these diced mixed vegetables find many other delightful uses. They are invaluable for soups, for scalloped vegetable dishes, vegetable and meat pies—their uses are legion! Keep plenty of cans of them on your shelves; save your meat juices and gravies, and see how easy it is to have a delicious meat and vegetable soup in practically no time.

If you have a weakness for vegetable pies, here's one worth talking about: Tomato Vegetable Pie: Drain the contents of one No. 2 can of mixed vegetables for salad into a buttered baking dish and pour over the vegetables the contents of a 10-ounce can of tomato soup. Roll out baking powder biscuit dough, cut in rounds, and place on top of the vegetables. Bake for fifteen to twenty minutes in a hot oven. This serves eight persons.

Youth Tackles The World

That time of year is almost here, now, when great legions of youth will march forth from high schools and colleges, diplomas in hand, with high hopes and an indomitable determination to conquer the world.

Naturally they will be somewhat disillusioned, and disciplined in the school of hard knocks. That merely tempers the steel. But how much better their opportunities are this year! More jobs are open to them than at any other time since 1931.

Problems galore of course, as youth always has. Many of them will go into large business enterprises, there to start at the bottom. They will spend long hours in this "school", learning salesmanship, marketing, efficient business methods and procedure. Their incomes, while not huge at first will be adequate, steady and certain.

Others, having a little saved, will choose a less certain path, setting up enterprises of their own. They should know beforehand that competition causes only 2 to 3 percent of business failures, while inexperience and lack of capital cause 25 to 30 percent.

So competition from large organizations will not block their paths, if they have the experience and wisdom to be efficient, and enough money to support even a very small business properly.

These problems of livelihood first. But what a multitude more there are! Problems of marriage, of a home, of future relationships—all to be tackled with youth's bustling energy and enthusiasm. What man is not tempted to want to turn back time and relive these years of his life!

Our Prison Problem

Few will argue the point that California's prison system has been permitted to lapse to the point of becoming a disgrace to the State. It is true, there have been extenuating circumstances, what with depression, lack of money, and more numerous convictions for crime.

But excuses cannot alter the fact that we're coming smack up against a crisis in prison affairs that must be met with intelligent action. That is clearly apparent in the picture drawn by ex-Warden James B. Holohan of impossible conditions at San Quentin.

More than six thousand men packed like cattle in a place meant for 3000! Thirty-nine men, living on floor space the size of a small bungalow! And the whole huge prison a keg of restless dynamite.

Holohan, retired now after eight and a half years as warden, has presented a five-point plan for an adequate California system. His basic theory is that rehabilitation should be stressed, that the rotten apples should be separated from those only bruised, who might be regenerated.

First he would have prison farms for youthful first offenders, where they could work in the open and learn cleaner ways. He would limit San Quentin to 2500 men. He would reserve Folsom only for the most incorrigible, dangerous criminals. He would have a separate institution for the criminally insane and feeble-minded. He would triple the number of men being rehabilitated in road camps.

Many will, of course, disagree in some way with the program. But no one will deny we must have a program, and soon. Every responsible citizen in the State should be putting in some serious thought on this prison problem.

Television is on the way and may be due to arrive in the home within a short space of time. In fact officials of the National Broadcasting Co., are said to have predicted that television sets will be placed in the homes within a year. In such an event it can't be long now before people will be invited to scrap their present radio sets and install those for television. Whether they will do so at the additional cost in times like these, may be a question of economic importance. However, many may not be worried over the matter, and will make haste to be up with the times irrespective of any financial bearers. At any rate, the greatest competitor of the theatre will be television, and the fight is already in sight. Construction of a coaxial cable to link New York and Philadelphia for experiments in telephone and television transmission has already been started. Many months will be required to complete the work, but the rate of progress will depend much on the difficulties encountered and television experiments may not even begin before next fall.

It takes a chief mail clerk and 25 assistants to read President Roosevelt's mail of approximately 7,000 letters daily. The president gets the record presidential mail in history; such subjects as petitions, criticisms, praises and compliments flow in by the bag full, and many times a day. Uncle Sam has a good postal business and the president is one of his best patrons. The postman evidently does not deliver the mail on foot; rather an auto truck is most convenient. President Roosevelt may sing the postman's ode which runs something like this:

The postman is a cheerful chap;
He whistles briefly and departs.
Sometimes he leaves a bit of joy;
Again a note that breaks our hearts.

The return of the liquor traffic is said to be America's greatest folly. We must admit that there are scores of complaints coming directly from the indulgence. Divorces, traffic deaths and accidents, demoralizing influences on the younger generation and many other threatening agencies. As a collective list the evil is casting an alarming warning upon the people. The "dry leaders" say that there must be action to stop this enemy of society. They cry for sane legislation, which is the only power to stop it. Talk is so cheap, that unless it is earnest, sane and convincing, talk will never do it.

Native of Mississippi Says Our Climate Ideal

Our southern friend, B.B. Wright, tells how much he thinks of the privilege of living in California, especially here at Ocean Beach, in the year-round moderate-climate which he was not accustomed to before getting so far west, and which is not equalled in more than one or two places in the whole world. Here are B.B.'s ideas of this section.

My first impressions of Point Loma and Ocean Beach:

I came to California from Oklahoma, stopped over at Holtville, Imperial valley, for the winter, and drank ditch water, and was satisfied there for about seven years, thinking all that time I was in California.

One day a friend picked me up in a new car and landed me on Point Loma and as I looked over beautiful Sunset Cliffs—west, I saw a view that caused a pause I can't express. Looking seven thousand miles across the great Pacific ocean and breathing air that has sixteen medicinal properties, I was just awed, to think of a Creator that could make such a heaven for men and women on earth, so I went back to make arrangements to come and live at Ocean Beach. My friends said, "Wright, you can't make a living there." I answered, that I saw one hundred and twenty-seven thousand doing it. So I came, and here I am, THANKS.

Now down to bed rock, if people in the east had any idea what wonderful climate and people we have here, Los Angeles sure would have to call out the National guard to stop them, for people everywhere are craving a restful, warm climate, and Ocean Beach and its people are so peace-loving and kind to live among, and when we get our fishing pier, (which we will) what better place would anyone want.

B. B. Wright.

S. D. OSTEOPATH INVITED TO EASTERN CONVENTION

Dr. L. Howard Watters, 5002 Niagara ave., Ocean Beach, has been invited to attend a meeting in July in New York of osteopathic physicians who care for athletic teams in colleges and schools, according to word received here. The meeting will be held in connection with the 40th annual convention of the American Osteopathic association.—S.D. Union.

Ninth District P.T.A. Delegates Named

The 9th district C.C.P.T.A. (California Congress of Parents and Teachers association) met in the Plata Real of the U.S. Grant hotel, Tuesday evening for post-convention dinner, where delegates to the San Jose State convention made interesting talks on high lights of the convention.

Installation of district officers included two former Ocean Beach presidents Mrs. Merle Burne and Mrs. Nell Horner.

La Jolla, Pacific Beach, Mission Beach and Ocean Beach united in a grouped table. Party favors symbolizing the beach districts were made of cunning paper-doll cut-outs under cellophane parasols with match sticks for handles. A mirror ocean, with a sand paper shore reflected sail boats, bathing beauties and airplanes. Local members present were Mrs. Don Horner, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wisdom, Miss Martha T. Farnum, Mrs. J. W. McCausland, Miss Margaret Shea, Mrs. Lee Stratton, Mrs. Louise Williams, Mrs. Glen Jones and Mrs. A. J. Hall.

High lights of the convention stressed the topic of taxation. Booklets on taxation and where your tax money goes may be had free by contacting your local PTA president.

BEAUTIFUL PAINTING PRESENTED GOODWILL CHAPEL BY LOCAL ARTIST

On Tuesday morning, May 19, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Smith were surprised to see the Goodwill chapel gayly decorated with flowers and a picture, Mr. Smith had painted and presented to superintendent Insko and staff of Goodwill Industries for their chapel, being in its appointed place. After the opening devotional exercises, Rev. Insko spoke a few words in appreciation of the first picture, given by the artist, which hangs in the office. He said many had wanted to buy it, but of course it was not for sale. Rev. Insko then asked the Rev. Williams to accept this second picture on behalf of the Goodwill staff. The title of this painting is "At Eventide There Shall Be Light," and depicts a dark evening with the moon shining through rolling clouds and trees, on to a water scene, with a quiet pastoral scene in the background.

Rev. Williams caught the artists vision saying, "The picture is true of our lives, which often are darkened by trials and troubles, but to the Christian the light of Jesus Christ shines through, giving us light in our troublous times, and pointing us ever onward to the Light of Life."

After accepting the picture in behalf of the superintendent and staff, Mr. Williams presented the artist with a bouquet of flowers, which Mr. Smith promptly presented to his wife. Mr. Smith responded in his usual jocular manner, also expressing the hope that the audience would receive as much pleasure in viewing his work as he had received in painting it. Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Smith of Ocean Beach, have conducted services in Goodwill chapel every other Tuesday for over two years.

NEW TRAINS ADDED TO SOUTHERN PACIFIC SERVICE

Opening of the annual summer tourist season May 15, begins an increase in tourist travel to Southern California that is expected to set new records for recent years, it was stated today by A. D. Hagaman, local representative Southern Pacific Lines.

Reports just received from a national survey of travel prospects give ample evidence that many thousands of people are planning vacation trips to California, he stated.

Low round-trip rates, both east and westbound, will again be a prime attraction to travelers this summer, but vast improvements in train equipment and schedules are expected to be of even greater appeal. All Southern Pacific transcontinental trains, together with many on shorter runs, now are completely air-conditioned.

In preparation for the heavy travel, three new trains daily to and from Southern California have been added to Southern Pacific service recently. One, the Argonaut, runs to New Orleans through Texas and two others have been added to service to and from the north.

These trains, with the famous Golden State Limited to Chicago, were declared to be in keeping with general improvements in business conditions during recent months.

HISTORY ESTABLISHMENT OF CALIFORNIA MISSIONS

California's famous old Missions, with their historical and romantic backgrounds, annually attract thousands of visitors. Twenty-one Franciscan Missions were founded by the Rev. Fray Junipero Serra and his colleagues extending from San Diego to what is now Sonoma county. Some are in ruins, others have been restored, all are preserved as priceless landmarks. Because of recent widespread revival of interest in the old Missions, Earl Lee Kelly, Director of the Dept. of Public Works, at the request of Governor Frank F. Merriam, has prepared for the benefit of visitors, brief histories of them directions on how to reach them over California highways. For the purposes of this series, the Missions will be taken up in the order of their location from south to north, rather than in the sequence of their founding.

MISSION SAN LUIS REY DE FRANCIA (A Continuation) JUNE 13, 1798.

Many of the converts fled to the mountains and reverted to their savage ways. Others refused to work and became shiftless and troublesome. Those who remained with the mission became little more than slaves.

"Such at this time," says Father Engelhardt, "was the situation at San Luis Rey, which down to the arrival of Echeandia, eight years before, sheltered a happy and contented family of more than 2,000 Indian converts."

Stirred to action by the misery of the Indians, Governor Alvarado on January 19, 1839, appointed William Hartnell, an Englishman, inspector of missions, and directed him to prepare a report on conditions. Hartnell, credited with being sincere and honest, tried to help Mission San Luis Rey. On July 5, 1840, he removed Pio Pico as administrator and appointed Jose Antonio Estudillo of San Diego to succeed him. Pio, however, continued intrigues to gain possession of the Indian ranchos.

In March, 1843, Governor Manuel Micheltona reinstated the Franciscans and on April 22 Mission San Luis Rey was turned over to Fr. Jose Maria Zalvidea. Peace came again to San Luis Rey, but lasted only two short years. Pio conspired successfully against Micheltona, drove him from the country and himself became governor. He was determined to wipe out the missions. He brought San Luis Rey to the verge of bankruptcy and on May 18, 1846, illegally sold the mission to Jose A. Cot and Jose A. Pico, including the Rancho Pala, for $2,000 in silver and $437.50 in grain. After American occupation this sale was nullified by the United States Supreme Court.

Under American army control, San Luis Rey received kindly treatment. Pio fled to Mexico in August, 1846. Successive American Indian agents brought a measure of prosperity back to the Mission and bettered conditions for the Indians. On March 18, 1851, President Abraham Lincoln returned the California missions to the church. Mission San Luis Rey possesses the original decree of return signed by Lincoln. Neglected and abandoned except for various military occupations for half a century, pillaged by vandals, San Luis Rey by 1892 was in a sorry state of ruin. In that year, two Franciscan friars from Mexico asked and received permission from Bishop Francis Mora to establish a novitiate, erected a two-story frame building across from the church and on May 12, 1893 the mission was re-dedicated. Through the untiring efforts of Rev. Fr. Joseph O'Keefe, who devoted nineteen years to his task, Mission San Luis Rey was restored to its present beautiful form. In 1913 the Sisters of the Precious Blood opened a school for girls there and today the educational institution near the mission represents an investment of $200,000.

Mission visitors leaving San Diego for San Luis Rey may follow the splendid State highway thru the attractive communities of La Jolla, Del Mar, Cardiff, Solano Beach, Encinitas, La Costa and Carlsbad to Oceanside, "Gateway to San Diego County," and thirty-eight miles from the city of San Diego. Or they may follow El Camino Real, main State highway, U. S. 101, over the new Rose Canyon route. Four miles up the San Luis Rey River from Oceanside is the famous Mission San Luis Rey. This old station of the padres is situated on an eminence which commands a splendid view of the surrounding country.

Motorists from the north will follow the State's unexcelled main highway, U. S. 101, from Los Angeles to Oceanside, passing enroute the Mission San Juan Capistrano, third in the chain of missions stretching from south to north.

THE POINT LOMA ASSEMBLY CHOOSES BOARD OF DIRECTORS

One of the most delightful events of the club year was a picnic recently given by the Point Loma assembly at "King's Garden." This is one of the many beauty spots in Presidio park surrounding the Junipero Serra museum.

Cubs. Stanley Turner, Mrs. Grace Culbertson and Mrs. Ray Penfold had charge of arrangements. Special features were a treasure hunt, a "scrambled word" game and a poetry writing contest. Mrs. W. E. Lyon found the "pot of gold" in the treasure hunt and was also awarded first place in the poetry contest. Other prizes went to Miss Byrd Taft, Mrs. W. R. Spicnall, Mrs. John Davidson, Mrs. E. E. Linstrom, Mrs. Shoemaker and Mrs. J. B. McFaden.

At a business meeting following luncheon, members of the board of directors for the coming year were elected. Those chosen to serve were Miss Eolia Davidson, Mrs. E. F. Linstrom, Mrs. W. E. Lyon, Mrs. Minnie McMillen, Miss Georgia Osgood, Mrs. Louise Pfahler, Miss Byrd Taft, Mrs. E. O. Tauer, Mrs. Stanley Turner and Miss Charlotte White. After the business meeting, John Davidson, curator of Junipero Serra museum, conducted members of the assembly on a tour of the grounds, pointing out the site of old Fort Stockton and telling many interesting facts about the trees and plants which go toward making Presidio hill a beautiful, as well as, a priceless historical gift to the city.

THE DESERT

The DEVIL'S PLAYGROUND

The Devil himself and the Violet Ray,
Are on the desert their pranks to play.

They cook the sage and wild mesquite,
They hide in the sand that burns your feet.
From early May 'till October morn,
They drive out the cool that winter's borne.
They go over north and dig a big well
And suck in the winds of a southern Hell;
They fill in the hole, then pitch it out
With a rush and a roar like a water spout.
Back and forth the wind will tear
In maddened glee and blinding flare,
Blotting all the world from sight,—
'Tis the Devil's madness—His appetite.

Rattlesnakes rattle, scorpions hide.
While the Devil takes his desert ride.
He changes the dunes and covers the earth
With a sandy blanket of Hellish mirth.—
But when he's thru, in mad contrast,
You find the return of a marvelous past;—
The same old hills, the same wild flowers,
With desert moon and quiet hours,—
Date-palm blooms, birds a-singing;
Butterflies in the stillness winging.
Now take it from me, and don't forget;
If you haven't been on the desert yet—
It's a wonderful place to come and roam,—
If the Devil's gone back to his devilish home.

Warren-Walker School

Summer vacations are being discussed since there are only three more weeks in this semester. Several children are coming back to Warren-Walker school for either the long term of summer school or for the short term. Other children plan to travel. Peter Pinney expects to leave San Diego late in the summer for a trip around the world. Robert McIntyre plans to accompany his mother to Yosemite park. Stewart Fox is very excited about a trip to Catalina Island, and then on to the Hawaiian Islands for an extended visit. Billy Russell also expects to go to Catalina. Miss Ruth Price, teacher of the intermediate group, is looking forward to an interesting summer. She is co-director of a girls' camp at Tamarack lodge, Pine Knot, California.

Last Friday afternoon the primary group had a birthday party for Jackie Graff. He was five years old. There was a lovely, big, white cake with his name, and five candles on it.

THE THEOSOPHICAL SOCIETY: POINT LOMA

Miss Helen Savage and W. Emmett Small will speak at Theosophical headquarters next Sunday at 3 p. m. on "The Constitution of Man." Right now in this world alive with new discoveries, inventions, and claims of material conquest, that which is least known of all is man himself. The speakers will give the Theosophical elements that form man's constitution, explaining how these work together and can at times be separated. They will link up man's inner being with the being of the universe and show how knowledge of the exterior spheres as well as wisdom of the interior nature of man is unitary. Knowledge of oneself brings power, strength and compassion.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES
"Soul and Body" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon on Sunday in all branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. The Golden Text is from 1 Peter: "Dearly beloved, I beseech you as strangers and pilgrims, abstain from fleshly lusts, which war against the soul."

Among the Bible selections in the Lesson-Sermon are these words from Paul's letter to the Galatians: "This I say, then, Walk in the Spirit, and ye shall not fulfil the lust of the flesh. For the flesh lusteth against the Spirit, and the Spirit against the flesh; and these are contrary the one to the other: so that ye cannot do the things that ye would. But if ye be led of the Spirit, ye are not under the law... If we live in the Spirit, let us also walk in the Spirit."

The famous "Liberty Bell Rug," on which President Roosevelt stood and wished that he might some day be President of the United States when he was still governor of New York, is on display at the Exposition in San Diego.

TIME For Play TODAY

ALL work and no play makes Jack a dull boy. But it makes Jill practically impossible. Women who have gone so berserk about work that they've forgotten how to have a good time are usually also poor workers. "But with so much to do staring me in the face—" That was a good line a decade ago, but it's no alibi today. Housework has become simpler, for canning has taken the drudgery out of cooking and if we can't find time to play something—bridge, golf, ping-pong, tiddle-de-winks—then it's just too bad.

Canned Mixed Vegetables
One of the newer and very welcome aids to busy housewives is the coming on the market of canned mixed vegetables. Sometimes called vegetables for salads, these diced mixed vegetables find many other delightful uses. They are invaluable for soups, for scalloped vegetable dishes, vegetable and meat pies—their uses are legion! Keep plenty of cans of them on your shelves; save your meat juices and gravies, and see how easy it is to have a delicious meat and vegetable soup in practically no time. If you have a weakness for vegetable pies, here's one worth talking about:

Tomato Vegetable Pie: Drain the contents of one No. 2 can of mixed vegetables for salad into a buttered baking dish and pour over the vegetables the contents of a 10½-ounce can of tomato soup. Roll out baking powder biscuit dough, cut in rounds, and place on top of the vegetables. Bake for fifteen to twenty minutes in a hot oven. This serves eight persons.*

"So you see that cup will make a most appropriate gift. But I'm so afraid that your cousin may refuse to accept it that, before I ask him to do so, I want to have it engraved with his crest. And that's where you can help me. I must have something of his that bears his crest, to give to the engraver to copy. A cigarette-case or a flask. Perhaps it's on the backs of his brushes. . . . You see, without that I'm stuck. At the present moment I don't even know what his crest is."

"Strangely enough," said I, "it's the same as your own—a leopard. But that doesn't mean—"

"What?"
The word flamed.

As the saying goes, I almost leapt out of my skin: and turned to find her staring—tense, wide-eyed and staring, white to the lips.

And then I knew I was lost. I had learned her crest from Pharaoh, and Pharaoh was wrong; and I had repeated the error which Pharaoh had made.

"I—I thought," I stammered. "I had an idea—"

"The badge of Yorick is an oak-tree," she whispered rather than spoke. "We've never displayed the leopard for more than 200 years."

The sibilant accusation struck me dumb.

She was round now and was kneeling, with her arms held close to her breast and her hands to her throat. Her breath was whistling in her nostrils and her eyes seemed to pierce my brain.

Helplessly I shrugged my shoulders. "I suppose I must have—"

"My God," she breathed, "you were there." As my eyes went down, she clasped her hands to her head. "My God!" she cried. "It was you! You, John, YOU, and not Bugle that—"

I pulled out my note-case and took out her master key.

As I laid it down by her side—"Sabre killed Bugle," I said. "His body's down in the moat. None of them saw it happen, so I walked into the castle and took his place."

Helena sat back on her heels, finger to lip. Her eyes were still wide, still staring: she seemed to be murmuring something I could not hear.

"I'm sorry," I said. "I didn't mean you to know."

At that a tremor ran through her: then, with a sudden movement, she flung herself down on her face and burst into tears.

For a moment I sat hesitating. Then something snapped within me.

I lifted her up and gathered her in to my arms.

With my face pressed tight against hers—

"Don't cry, Nell," I said. "I can't bear it. And—please don't send me away."

"I'm not sending you away," she sobbed. She caught at my coat. "And I'll tell you another thing. I'd never have let you go. If all else had failed, I was going down to the station."

I held her off and looked into her tear-stained face.

"But, Nell, just now you—"

"I wanted to know if you loved me. I had to be sure of that. But now . . ." She hid her face in my coat. "Oh, John, my darling, you've made me feel so humble, so cheap and—"

I stopped her beautiful mouth.

"How do you think I feel, Nell? How do you think I felt when I stood in that secret chamber and heard you buying my safety—the life and health of the man who'd just turned you down?"

A child looked into my eyes.

"Shall we . . . take each other back, John?"

"Yes, please, Nell," I said quietly.

With a little sigh of contentment she slid an arm round my neck.

CHAPTER XII

Storm Music.

Our respective tales had been told. My disaffection forgiven, our grace had been said, and we were now standing together at the edge of the lawn. We had started to return to the car, but now with one consent we had stopped to look again upon the beauty which we were to leave.

It seemed so strange that life and death and fortune had lain in that peaceful setting, awaiting a sweet June day'spring to leap to their battle stations, thence to dispute the fate of six human beings, not one of whom, till that morning, had so much as suspected the existence of such a spot.

A century of dawns and sundowns had found and left it sleeping, as it was sleeping now; and then in a twinkling the earth had opened, the brook had played storm music and . . .

"To think," said Helena, "that I treated you as a child."

"The truth is," said I, "we're both children: and children hate to be treated as children, you know."

Helena lifted her head, to survey the blue of the sky. The eager look in her face would have made a sick man well.

"I wasn't," she said. "I was a woman all right. But I think—it's all your own doing, you know—but I think, my dear, you'll have a child for a wife."

There is not much more to be told. My cousin's reception of the truth was more than handsome: and I really believe that Barley would not have exchanged the knowledge that I had caused Pharaoh's death for all the gold that lay in the cellars of Yorick or anywhere else. But old Florin's simple tribute would have warmed any man's heart.

"Sir, you have done my duty. And that, by the grace of God; for I myself could never have done it so well."

It was he who said at once that Bugle's body would be found held down by the grill which kept foreign matter from passing into the waste-pipes that led from the moat. Sure enough, there it was. Its removal and the subsequent rites were grisly enough; but the four of us did the business without any help, because, having got so far, it seemed a pity that we should explode a theory which Yorick—and Yorick's neighbors—had been at such pains to digest.

When my cousin broached the question of getting rid of the gold, Helena made no objection, but only begged his assistance to carry through a transaction she dared not attempt alone.

This to our great surprise, till we learned that her solemn trust was now at an end, because her father had said that on her marriage the gold must be reinvested or lodged at a bank. And this in due course was done. My cousin arranged the affair with a famous house and within six weeks, a fortnight before we were wed, the bullion was out of the cellar and Helena mistress of a fortune which was considerably greater than that which her father laid up.

A letter from the Count of Yorick afforded us infinite pleasure and deserves to be set out in full:—

Dear Helena:
I hope you are very well. I am not at Yorick because I was bitten by a mad dog and a good Samaritane brought me straight here. I would like to thank him for that. He saved my life, you know. Fancy a mad dog worrying me. I think I must just have gone out for a walk or something and then it just leaped upon me and worried me and I knew no more. And this is the only one place that I could have been saved from going mad. It makes you get hot all over. By the way, I'm off liquor. Alcohol, I mean. They make me heeling drinks here with virtue in them and I fairly lapp them up. And the wound's healing like a little child. They say liquor's very dangerous for hiderofore. I nearly died, you know. All the while the good Samaritane were taking me to the monastery, it was touch and go more than once. The madness was in my veins. It makes you go hot. But I'm all right now. They say I can get up for a little while on Sunday and look at the flours. I shall like that. I see the vanity of life now all right. There is a good monk here called Father Bernard. Of course they are all good, but he is the best. He says all is vanity and that the pumps of the world are void. You know there's a lot in that. Well, I must end now. But I thought you might wonder where I was. What a escape! Fancy a mad dog like that ranging about seeking whom he might devour. I tell you, I hadn't a chance. He just leaped upon me, nashing their fangs. I can see it now.

Your loving brother,
VALENTINE

What about Fanning? I rather hope he's gone. If not, perhaps you could fire him out. He swore Spencer was your evil genie, but I thought Spencer had a good eye. Sour grapes, I guess. I suppose you knew what you were doing.

The reformation this letter foreshadowed was more than we could believe, but I am bound to record that it was fairly fulfilled. The shock or the fear of death or, perhaps, his curious communion with that honest and kindly fellowship of simple souls wrought in the count an astonishing change of heart. The weeds that had choked his qualities withered and died, and though I was most apprehensive of our relation, 24 hours' acquaintance had made us the best of friends.

His postscript brings me to Pharaoh. Of that unconscionable scoundrel I have but little to say. That the man was most swift and daring I cannot deny, but I think that his deadly reputation was to him the highwayman's mare. When at last he was standing upon his own feet, even I was able to show that, if his eye was quicker, at least his spine was as brittle as that of another man.

The portrait my cousin had painted will always rank for me as one of the greatest triumphs a painter ever achieved. This is not because he had rendered a beautiful likeness, nor yet because he had captured the leaping spirit that lived in the lovely flesh; but because he had marked, as I had, that the precious eager look was out of his subject's face and had painted it in from memory out of a grateful heart.

Though my life is secure and happy beyond belief, the events of those terrible days are cut as in stone upon my mind. But I would not forget them, if I could: for out of their wrack and turmoil I won my beautiful wife. Often and often I read their grim inscription and gaze at the riotous pageant which this calls up. I see that dreadful labor down in the sparkling dell and Dewdrop finger the paper that I let fall: I tread The Reaping Hook's stairs and I hear—as I shall hear to my dying day—the deadly voice of Pharaoh behind the door: I see him enter the room with Valentine's hand upon his shoulder and I hear him whistling for Sabre with my heart in my mouth: I hear the Carliotta coming with the rush of a mighty wind, and I hear the cough of the Rolls as her engine failed: I hear Rush plying Bugle to make my blood run cold, I hear Pharaoh bullying Freda, and I see the flame of the pistol that saved his life: I see the awful change in my darling's face, and I turn to see Pharaoh smiling behind my back: I smell the fragrance of the valley that knew no sun; and then I see her stricken and trembling in Pharaoh's power, and I hear the roar of our pistols and I see the man spent with hatred, staring into my eyes. . . .

It is written, Out of the eater came forth meat. I can only say I have found this saying most true. The goddess Aphrodite rose from the foam of the sea: but Helena Spencer came out of the wrath of a tempest that had risen to smite us both. Together, saving each other, we rode out that frightful storm—the remembrance of which is not grievous, for our desperately perilous passage, side by side, has bound us more closely together than the sharing of any joys.

Predicts One of Nine Persons Will Be Injured During 1936

Every ninth person will meet with an accident of some sort this year if past statistics can be relied upon, L. D. Cavanaugh, executive vice president of the Federal Life Insurance Co., of Chicago, asserted recently in a statement issued in connection with Accident and Health week.

"The number who will probably meet with accidents," Cavanaugh continued, "is five times as great as are expected to die from natural causes. More than 8,250,000 persons were injured and more than 100,000 killed by accidents in the United States last year, according to statistics compiled by the National Safety council. The toll taken by sickness is even greater. While an average of 17 persons is injured in accidents every minute of the night and day, 11 are disabled each minute by sickness."

Habits Live

A MIEL, the philosopher, was never wiser than when he said: "Habits count for more than maxims, because habit is a living maxim, become flesh and instinct. To reform one's maxims is nothing; it is but to change the title of the book. To learn new habits is everything, for it is to reach the substance of life. Life is but a tissue of habits." Each good habit we weave in our teens means a better and happier life to its very end.

A 10-inch laceration of the right leg also had to be sewed up. The young man is being cared for at Mercy hospital.

Jules Garnier, 4961 Brighton avenue, possibly owes his life to Doreen Perrine, manager of the Silver Spray Apts., for assistance late Monday night when Perrine helped Garnier from the wave-washed rocks near the plunge. Garnier, who is past 80 years of age, claimed he was walking along the beach when a wave struck him and pulled him down into the water. He was washed along toward the rocks at the Silver Spray and there managed to grasp one and hang on until assistance came. On account of lateness of the hour the rescued man may feel that he was fortunate indeed in getting assistance.

Market Supervisor

Boosts Lamb Sales

For the fifth year in succession, western lamb growers are to be made beneficiaries of an intensive "lamb sale" drive throughout the entire organization of Safeway Stores, Inc. Notice to the effect that the sale will be held from May 22 to 30 inclusive and a request for their active cooperation in making the event a success has been sent to managers of all the company's stores and markets.

In making the announcement locally, E. J. Rasmussen, Safeway market supervisor here, revealed that the stimulating effect upon lamb consumption of the four previous sales drives was so outstanding as to have received national recognition from leaders in the lamb raising and wool growing industries.

"All former records are likely to fall in this year's event, however," Mr. Rasmussen asserted. "First, because economic conditions are better and the price to consumers will be more favorable; second, because various state lamb growers associations have been doing some very effective advertising throughout their territories; and third, because lamb is the preferred summer meat."

Strong endorsement for Safeway's efforts on behalf of the lamb grower, contained in a telegram from F. R. Marshall, secretary of the National Wool Growers association to the company's head-quarters, was quoted by Mr. Rasmussen, Marshall's statement in part reads, "Safeway Stores action in popularizing lamb at current prices highly appreciated."

The sale this year will again be supported by a strong newspaper advertising campaign calling the attention of the housewife to the general all-round desirability of lamb as a principal item of family diet.
